Joey: I didn't.

Teacher: Yes you did.

Joey: How did you know?

Teacher: I knew because when John wrote, "I don't know," on question #6, you wrote, "me neither."

ENJOY A FRUGAL FALL ROAD TRIP

Road trips are a staple of autumn for many motorists. Fall foliage and moderate temperatures make the months of September and October ideal months to hit the open road for weekend getaways.

Fall road trips rarely take drivers too far away from home, but traveling can still be costly. Fortunately, there are many ways to make road trips more affordable without sacrificing fun.

· Explore alternatives to more traditional lodging. If your road trip includes an overnight stay, consider alternatives to traditional lodging. Hotels might stretch your budget, but depending on where you plan to go, you might have some less traditional alternatives. Airbnb.com allows homeowners and even some apartment dwellers to rent their homes and apartments to travelers, and these listings may pale in comparison to rates offered by nearby hotels. If weather permits, look for local campsites and spend your nights sleeping outdoors under the autumn stars. If you prefer hotels, look for deals on sites like Priceline.com or Hotwire.com, which may offer heavy discounts on rooms.

· Take steps to conserve fuel. Lodging might prove your biggest expense on a fall road trip, but fuel likely won't be too far behind. Drivers can cut fuel costs in several ways. Before beginning your trip, take your car in for a tuneup so any issues that might affect fuel efficiency are addressed before you hit the open road. Poorly inflated tires force the engine to work harder and burn more fuel, so make sure tire pressure matches the levels recommended in your owner's manual before embarking on your trip and even along the way if you feel your car is not running as smoothly as it could be. Another way to conserve fuel is to remove excess items from the trunk. If you don't plan to hit the links on your trip, leave your golf clubs at home.

Plot your route. Spontaneity may make fall road trips more fun, but drivers looking to save money should plot their routes in advance so they can avoid potentially costly problems like detours or road work that can waste fuel and lead to hours sitting in traffic. Use a GPS device during your trip so you can be alerted to any unexpected developments that might cost you time and money. Plotting your route in advance also allows you to find affordable dining and lodging options and choose roads that don't require drivers to pay tolls.

Invite some friends and family along. Inviting friends and family on a weekend getaway can make the trip more fun and more affordable. If you have room in the car, inviting friends along allows you to split fuel costs, and you may even save on lodging if you find a hotel that won't charge for extra guests in the room. Friends and family also can help split the cost of supplies.

Bring your own food. Food is another big expense road trippers must account for. But you can save money on food by bringing your own meals along on the trip. Prepare some sandwiches the morning that you leave and keep them fresh in a cooler so you don't have to pay for lunch. In addition, pack some snacks so you and your passengers can quickly and affordably quell any hunger pangs that arise while you're on the road. If you plan to stay in a place with its own kitchen, cook your own dinners so you don't have to spend money dining out.

Road trips are a staple of autumn, when drivers can still enjoy the open road without breaking the bank.

WET WEATHER DRIVING TIPS

Driving in the rain can be more hazardous than driving in the snow, particularly because drivers fail to realize the dangers wet roads can impose. After averaging 10 years of statistics, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration found that 46 percent of weather-related crashes happened during rainfall, but just 17 percent occurred while it was snowing or sleeting.

Drivers often think rain is no big deal, but while it's not necessary to avoid driving when the raindrops begin to fall, exercising caution when the roads are wet can decrease the risk of being in an auto accident.

- Slow down. Wet roadways cause tires to lose traction, as friction is reduced between the rubber and the asphalt. It's possible to lose up to one-third of traction in the rain. To compensate, slow down to reduce sliding and stopping distances.

- Improve visibility. Turn on windshield wipers and lights when it is raining. This makes it easier to see the road and makes your vehicle more visible to other motorists.

- Leave more distance between cars. In addition to improving your reaction time, giving others more space can improve visibility by reducing the amount of mist or splashing caused by other vehicles.

- Stick to daytime driving. If possible, when it is raining, drive only during the day. Glare from wet roadways and headlights at night can further compromise poor visibility.

- Watch for wind gusts. Anticipate gusts when traveling through windy road corridors or over bridges.

Lest We Forget

HONOURING OUR PAST, REMEMBERING OUR HEROES.

On this day, we remember the brave men and women who answered the call to serve, and we honour their sacrifice at home in our rural Alberta communities, and across the country.

Let us never forget their courage and their dedication to their community, their country, and their freedom.

We are forever grateful for their immeasurable sacrifice and contribution to our country and its people.

On this Remembrance Day, as we mark the 100th anniversary of the Poppy as a symbol of respect for those lost, we acknowledge all those who have served, and we thank them, and their families for all they have sacrificed in the service of our freedom.

WHAT MATTERS TO YOU ARE NOT ALONE

Submitted by MLA Shane Getson

I'm not sure at what age that I became the scorn of my father, and the focus of how his life could have been different had he not had to marry my mother due to an unplanned pregnancy, me. I do know that the first time I remember that being expendable was in grade 3, when coming home from school that all my meager belongings were placed in garbage bags on the lawn beside my mothers, and that we were being kicked out. This scenario repeated itself over the years until I was about 15 years old when my mother left, and I stayed to take care of my two younger brothers.

I can't tell you the first time that my Father lost his temper, where his punishment went from something I did and was responsible for, to just for being there, something that could be hit, as some hit inanimate objects to take out those frustrations. I can tell you the hardest I was hit, was when I was 12 when the board that he found within reach was swung at my head, and I managed to get a hand up to deflect some of the force, the board broke, and I fell to my knees. I don't remember being knocked out as only most of my vision went blank, ears were ringing, everything around me seemed distant. I could hear my mother screaming that he was going to kill me, and to stop. The last time he tried hitting me was when I was 16, I was big enough to fight back, his abuse was only verbal after that point.

I can't tell you how many times he put me down, made me feel useless, and that I'd never be anything. I can tell you that I always tried hard to make him proud, I worked as hard as I could, and when I achieved personal successes, it always fell short of what he would have wanted.

I decided growing up to never turn out like my parents, that I would be responsible for my own actions, and that no matter how "useless" he continued to call me that I would make my own way, and never look back. I also made the decision to protect my younger brothers from my parents, so that they wouldn't have to feel the emotional pain or physical pain I did. I couldn't protect them from everything my parents seemed to dish out, and I'm sure they had their own share of issues to work out as young men, but I did everything I could do as their big brother.

There are only a few folks that I have ever shared my life growing up on the farm with, and the reasons that at I ultimately made the decision to cut my parents completely out of my life. I didn't want my children to go through any of that drama and have done the utmost to be the best man that I can for my wife and children. By no way am I perfect, and remain a work in progress, but because of where I came from, I have a reference point that I can follow, so that I with thought don't become my father, or fall into any of the traps of that upbringing.

I've had some great mentors over the years that have helped me along, I've lost few along the way either by circumstance or passing with age. I miss them, but do my best to remember their lessons, and thankfully I still have a number that I can call on from time to time, and in this current role, their friendship is greatly appreciated.

I believe that the "bad things" that happen to us can either define who we are, or they can be used to make us into stronger people, and sometimes provide that motivation, the grit to drive us harder to achieve our goals. I believe that drive can be channeled to prove those who caused us harm wrong, and the byproduct will be that we are better people and can be better parents to our kids than those that we were saddled with as parents ever were.

I felt compelled to share some of myself with you, with the hopes that this would make an impact for the better in your life. I've told my kids a little here and there over the years why we don't necessarily have the depth of relatives around the Christmas tree as some of their friends do, and to give insight, and help by extension to some of their friends who may have tougher circumstances at home themselves.

My son and I thankfully have a strong relationship, and I am immensely proud to see the kind of man that he is growing into. He is going to be a better man than I am, and I am so proud of that. He is going to be a great friend, husband, father, and a member in his community that others can rely on. In short, he will have a better start, and be able to go further than I could in a shorter time frame, I am excited to see what his future holds.

My son recently told me about one of his friends who is having a very troubling time. I had asked my son to be able to share with him some of the items I wrote here, and to tell his friend that he is the one that can make up his mind how his story goes, he gets to write it, and make his future what he wants. His friend is already on his way, has some goals, and I believe has the grit to make it happen. Through my son, I extended the offer that if his friend ever needed anything, to talk, to get some ideas etc. I'd be more than happy to be a mentor.

Coming home late from session last week my Son who was studying for an exam came up to me and wanted to talk. He was obviously upset, and out of sorts, I assumed it was going to be about school, test anxiety, or something of the like. Kids working through the last couple of years curve balls when it comes to grades, working to get into universities, dealing with family issues, has not been an easy thing. It was one of those moments, but it was again related to one of his friends, she had overdosed and died that day.

What I thought to be a "standard dad talk" turned into a very in-depth conversation, covering several topics, of which was to uncover any items that I may have missed that were happening in my own family's life, that I may have been too busy to see. I was relieved that there were not any issues there but was extremely saddened to hear about the young lady who was my son's friend that had fallen into a tough time, had tried to commit suicide before, and had slid into the drug culture. It further saddened me to hear that she had only recently been talking with my son that she was getting into a better frame of mind and was getting her life back on track.

I'd like everyone to take a bit of a pause if we could, to know that if you are going through a tough time to reach out to a friend or family member to let them know. We all go through rough spots, no shame there, we all need a hand here and there, and just sometimes someone to talk too. If it is more than that, please find below, the numbers you can call. If you are in a home where there is violence, or other forms of abuse, don't hesitate to call these numbers or my office, so we can see what we can do to help. You are not alone, you have the grit to make it through, and there are folks out there that want you to succeed, even though it may seem like there are only those who want you to fail. Trust me, you can make like what you want, don't let anyone or anything take that away from you. Tough times will pass, only if you carry on, and if needed, be bold enough to make the needed changes.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!
