SEARCH WARRANT EXECUTED AFTER JOINT PROJECT BETWEEN RCMP, ALBERTA SPCA AND PARKLAND COUNTY ENFORCEMENT SERVICES

Submitted by RCMP, Alberta SPCA and Parkland County Enforcement Services

On April 14, 2025, Evansburg RCMP executed a search warrant on a rural property in Parkland County, Alta., in regards to stolen property and animals in distress. The RCMP, with assistance from the Alberta SPCA and Parkland County Enforcement Services, attended the property and located several horses that were deemed to be in distress. The horses were seized by Alberta SPCA Peace Officers and transported to a caretaking facility for further examination and treatment.

As a result of the investigation, Patricia Moore (54), a resident of Parkland County who is already subject to a court ordered lifetime ban from owning, caring for or being in possession of, any equine animals, was

ELEVENTH ANNUAL SUMMER SESSIONS RETURN WITH ALL- CANADIAN LINEUP AND FINALE HEADLINER GEORGE CANYON

Submitted by Stony Plain

Summer in Stony Plain is about to hit all the right notes! The eleventh annual Summer Sessions concert series is back, bringing an exciting lineup of Canadian musical talent to Heritage Park from June through August. These free, family-friendly concerts will light up Wednesday nights with live music, local flavour, and community connection.

Running weekly from June 18 to August 13, the 2025 series will feature special guests at 6:30 PM followed by headlining performances at 7:00 PM. Gates open at 5:30 PM, with food trucks and refreshments available onsite.

The biggest news? Canadian country icon George Canyon will headline the final concert of the summer on August 13 in a special solo performance.

"This is a huge moment for our community," says Mayor William Choy. "George Canyon is a arrested and charged with:

- Breaching a court order;

- Possession of stolen property under $5000;

- Breaching prohibition order; and

- Causing unnecessary pain and suffering or injury to an animal (x2).

Patricia Moore was brought before a justice of the peace and released on conditions, including one to make alternate housing arrangements for any remaining horses on the property. Moore's next court date is set for April 28, 2025 at the Alberta Court of Justice in Evansburg.

"I would like to thank those who are willing to come forward and provide information that helps protect vulnerable animals," said Sgt Sutherland, Detachment Commander of the Evansburg RCMP. "It is thanks to the public that we were able to work with the Alberta SPCA and Parkland County Enforcement Services to seize these animals and protect them from further harm".

"Prohibition orders against owning or caring for animals can be an effective tool in preventing animal distress," added Alberta SPCA Executive Director Leanne Niblock. "We want to thank the RCMP for their diligent work to enforce this order and ultimately help protect animals and will continue to work to make protections for all animals even stronger."

ENHANCED SUPPORT FOR LOCAL FIRE SERVICES

Submitted by Government of Alberta

Strengthened local fire services with more support for training, response planning and greater collaboration will help keep Albertans and their communities safe.

Emergency situations bring an uncertainty that can leave the effect of stress and anxiety for many Albertans and their communities. Alberta's local fire services hold a leading role in ensuring that Albertans and communities can navigate and make it through the uncertain times of an emergency through quick response and education around fire safety and prevention.

To further support municipalities in strengthening public safety during emergency situations, Alberta's government is providing $585,000 to support municipal fire services and the Alberta Fire Chiefs Association (AFCA). In addition, Alberta's government will establish a committee to strengthen ties between the provincial government, local governments and fire services to bolster public safety.

"We are committed to public safety and improving how we support our brave and dedicated fire services. We appreciate the valuable feedback we received during our fire service review and look forward to the ongoing dialogue and collaboration we'll achieve through the Provincial Fire Liaison Committee."

Ric McIver, Minister of Municipal Affairs

Municipalities and their local fire services are often the first line of defence for an emergency, which makes it essential that firefighters receive training reflective of industry best standards. To ensure firefighters have access to the best training, Alberta's government is providing a one-time increase of $500,000 for the Fire Services Training Program, bringing total funding to $1 million for training grants this year. This funding is available to all municipalities, Metis Settlements, and First Nations communities in Alberta and will prepare firefighters with the knowledge and skills they need to navigate emergency situations.

"We appreciate the Government of Alberta's commitment to strengthening local fire services. This investment will help ensure the safety of our residents, first responders, and communities. Together, we will build a stronger emergency response network to protect Albertans when they need it most."

Bob Marshall, reeve, County of Grande Prairie

In addition to the funding available to municipalities, $85,000 will be provided to the AFCA to enhance their core competency tool, which municipalities can use to conduct risk assessments, develop appropriate fire service response plans and determine training needs. This new grant builds upon the Alberta government's previous grant of $200,000 that was provided in 2024 to the AFCA to strengthen provincial fire reporting. Together, the core competency tool updates and improvements made to reporting will put municipal leaders in a better position to make well-informed decisions about local fire services and protection strategies for their communities.

"The government support provided here today to our municipalities will play a crucial role in enhancing the skills and training of Alberta firefighters, ultimately leading to safer communities and continuously enhancing emergency response."

Chief Randy Schroeder, president, Alberta Fire Chiefs Association

To further support the role of municipal fire services in strengthening public safety, a provincial fire liaison committee that will be made up of municipal, First Nations, Métis and fire service representatives is also under development. The diversity of the representatives on the committee will ensure that a variety of demographics, community sizes, skill sets and fire department structures are considered as part of its work. The committee is anticipated to be in place later this year.

IMPROVING ACCESS TO LIFE-SAVING CANCER TREATMENT

Submitted by Government of Alberta

Alberta's government is improving access to treatment for advanced prostate cancer by making a new, leading-edge drug available to Albertans.

In Alberta, about 2,500 men are diagnosed with prostate cancer each year, with one in six men in the province being diagnosed during their lifetime.

Albertans living with cancer need the most effective treatments available, which is why Alberta's government is committed to funding innovative new therapies to improve both cancer care and prevention. To support these efforts, Alberta's government has made Pluvicto, a new radiopharmaceutical treatment for advanced prostate cancer, available to Albertans.

"We know that Albertans living with advanced prostate cancer and their health providers have been awaiting access to this new treatment. Bringing Pluvicto to our province has been a priority for the government, and I'm pleased we can now offer this leading therapy to Albertans."

Adriana LaGrange, Minister of Health

As soon as a national pricing agreement was reached in December 2024, Alberta worked quickly to add Pluvicto to the Schedule of Outpatient Cancer Drugs, becoming the third province to do so, alongside Ontario and Nova Scotia. Alberta Health Services is now finalizing a contract with the manufacturer to ensure this treatment is accessible to patients. The Outpatient Cancer Drug Benefit Program provides access to cancer medications included on the Schedule of Outpatient Cancer Drugs to patients at no cost.

Prior to offering this treatment, the province arranged for the special handling, administration and medical imaging required, as well as to provide training to health providers. It is anticipated that the administration of this intravenous radioligand therapy to Albertans will begin later this month.

"When we partnered with Alberta Health to bring PSMA-PET imaging technology to Alberta in 2021, we knew it would be transformative. We are thrilled it's led to this emerging new treatment being offered – a breakthrough moment and incredible news for men with advanced prostate cancer."

Wendy Beauchesne, CEO, Alberta Cancer Foundation

The drug will be administered at the Cross Cancer Institute in Edmonton to start and will become available at the Arthur J.E. Child Comprehensive Cancer Centre later this year.

"Cancer Care Alberta is very pleased that Pluvicto is now publicly funded in Alberta, allowing us to bring this new innovation in treatment to Albertans living with advanced prostate cancer."

Brenda Hubley, chief program officer, Cancer Care Alberta

Pluvicto is an intravenous treatment given in a cancer centre. It contains a radioligand – a substance that combines a targeting molecule with a small amount of radiation. This radioligand binds to a specific receptor expression on prostate cancer cells, delivering targeted radiation to kill them. Before receiving treatment, patients undergo a PET-CT scan to confirm they have the receptor expression, ensuring the treatment will be effective. It's estimated that about 200 advanced prostate cancer patients in Alberta have the specific receptor needed to benefit from this treatment each year.

In March 2024, Alberta's government provided $5 million for the provision of prostate specific membrane antigen (PSMA) positron emission tomography/computed tomography (PET/CT) scans to eligible Albertans to help accurately diagnose advanced prostate cancer and assist with administering the Pluvicto treatment.

"The Government of Alberta's decision to publicly fund Pluvicto offers renewed hope for Albertans facing advanced prostate cancer with limited options. This important step demonstrates a shared commitment from government, healthcare providers and industry to address the unmet needs of these patients. We applaud Alberta's leadership in advancing cancer care and remain committed to ensuring Canadians in all provinces have access to this innovative treatment."

ALBERTA FINALIZING FLOOD MAPS AT LIGHTNING SPEED

Submitted by Government of Alberta

Alberta's has finalized more flood maps in the past five years than in the previous thirty-five years combined.

Flood maps help keep people safe and play a critical role in informing local emergency response plans and guiding future Indigenous community and municipal development decisions. In the past five years, flood mapping has launched in 100 municipalities and Indigenous communities.

Now, seven new flood map studies are underway for the communities of: Carbon, Chateh, Crownsnest Pass, Lethbridge Rycroft, Thorsby and Two Hills. Work will begin immediately, with results expected before the end of next year.

In addition, Alberta is soliciting feedback on four flood map studies nearing completion, including: Hinton, Vegreville, Stettler, Red Deer County and Markerville. Mapping from these studies covers about 250 kilometres of rivers and creeks through seven municipalities. Albertans can provide feedback at floods.alberta.ca until May 12.

All rivers, streams and lakes in Alberta have the potential to flood. Knowing where the water will flow during a flood is critical to understanding where it's safe to farm, safe to build, and how to best prepare for emergency situations.

"Our government is committed to creating more than 3,000 kilometres of new and updated flood mapping by 2028. So far, we've completed 1,600 kilometres. This commitment has resulted in more flood maps being finalized in the past five years than in the previous thirty-five years combined. Alberta's proactive work will help protect communities, families and businesses in the decades to come."

Rebecca Schulz, Minister of Environment and Protected Areas

"The Rural Municipalities of Alberta appreciate the Government of Alberta working to create new flood mapping in recent years. Floodwaters do not recognize jurisdictional boundaries, and rural municipalities must plan carefully how to use their limited resources to best protect their residents, businesses and the environment. Having access to the data provided by these flood maps will enable rural municipalities to plan appropriately and mitigate the impacts of flooding for years to come."

Kara Westerlund, president, Rural Municipalities of Alberta

"Alberta Municipalities congratulates the provincial government for accelerating its flood mapping for communities of all sizes throughout Alberta. Our members count on accurate, up-to-date flood maps to guide their communities' development and assist with their emergency management planning."

Tyler Gandam, president, Alberta Municipalities

6 OPTIONS FOR FUNDING YOUR NEXT HOME IMPROVEMENT PROJECT

Before starting a home improvement project, either on one's own or with the assistance of a professional contractor, homeowners must first consider the costs involved. According to the home improvement resource HomeAdvisor, more than one-third of homeowners do not understand what hiring a professional will cost, and then cannot successfully budget and secure financing once they have set their sights on a renovation project.

HomeAdvisor says that some of the more popular projects, such as remodeling a kitchen or bathroom or building a deck, can cost, on average, $19,920, $9,274 and $6,919, respectively.

Homeowners may find that the more expensive renovations require them to secure some type of financing. Those who have never before sought such financing may want to consider these options.

1. Cash-out refinancing: With cash-out refinancing, a person will begin the mortgage process anew with the intention of paying off the current mortgage balance, and then taking out additional funds for other purposes. Cash-out refinancing is a way to tap into a home's existing equity for use on improvements or other expenses, such as college tuition.

2. Home equity line of credit: The financial experts at Bankrate indicate that a HELOC works like a credit card, with the house as collateral. There is a credit limit, and borrowers can spend up to that limit. The interest rate may or may not be fixed. However, the interest may be tax-deductible if the financing is used to improve, buy or build a home.

3. Home equity loan: Individuals also can borrow against equity in their homes with a fixed interest rate through a home equity loan. Most lenders will calculate 80 percent of the home value and subtract a homeowner's mortgage balance to figure out how much can be borrowed, according to the financial advisory site The Simple Dollar.

4. Personal loan: Homeowners can shop around at various financial institutions for competitive personal loans to be used for home improvement purposes. Funds may be approved within one business day, which can be ideal for those who want to begin their improvements soon.

5. Personal line of credit: A personal line of credit allows borrowers to borrow only the money needed at the time, and offers a variable interest rate that is generally lower than fixed loan rates. Again, like a credit card, PLOC gives a person a maximum borrowing amount and is ideal for ongoing purchases.

6. Credit cards: In a pinch, credit cards can be used to finance improvements, but they do come with the cost of very high interest rates if the balance is not paid in full by the time the bill comes due. However, for funding smaller projects and maximizing rewards points through home improvement retailers or specific credit card company promotions, credit cards can be a way to earn various perks in addition to the benefit of improving a home.

Homeowners looking to finance their next improvements should speak to a financial advisor and shop around for the best types of funding for them.

CREATE A TEEN-FRIENDLY SPACE AT HOME

Teenagers are busier than ever before. But even the busiest teens need places to unwind and relax with friends. Many parents aspire to create that type of environment in their homes but don't know where to begin.

Having teens close by and interacting with them on a regular basis can benefit families. Data from the National Center for Education Statistics notes that parental involvement correlates to higher grade point averages. Research from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says certain parenting styles, including those that set rules and monitor teens in supportive ways, develop kids who are more likely to wear seat belts while driving, while such support also lowers crash risk. Involved parents also may reduce the chances of teen drug use and promiscuous behavior.

Parents who want to keep teens nearby can create hangout spaces at home that make it easy for teens to feel comfortable with their friends. These "teen caves" can be private but permit supervision when necessary. With a few modifications, it's possible to transform a room in a home into a teen-friendly hangout space.

Talk to your children. Involve teens in the process of renovating a home to create a spot in which they would like to congregate. Talk about elements they would like to see in the space, whether it be a particular design style, technology or activity.

Establish a shared budget. Paint is inexpensive and can transform just about any room in a single afternoon. If the room being renovated is the teen's own bedroom, allow him or her to choose the color palette and other accents. Even if it isn't to your taste, he or she will be proud of the results and may want to share it with friends.

- Have a snack station. Some teenagers always seem to be hungry, and hanging out with friends while enjoying food is a popular pastime. When renovating a room into a teen cave, find a way to make food a focus. Install a mini-refrigerator and non-alcoholic bar where kids can serve snacks to friends. Think about a space you would like as an adult and modify it to be more accommodating to teenagers.

- Add more seating. Having friends over means having enough seating to handle a small crowd. Beanbags, cushioned benches, a daybed, modular seating, and more can ensure everyone has a place to sit.

- Make a private outdoor spot. Teen spaces do not need to be restricted to the indoors. Design advice site Houzz says an outdoor escape zone that includes comfortable seating in a private area - particularly a spot that can also be enjoyed into the evening - will be a coveted spot.

- Invest in "indestructible" materials. Teenagers are bound to make messes, and having other people over means contending with a certain measure of damage. Design the space with indoor-outdoor carpeting, water-resistant fabrics, distressed wood, and other durable materials.

Adolescents are always looking for spaces to gather without overbearing adult interference. Homeowners can create such spaces for their children in their own homes.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION FOR COMPASSIONATE INTERVENTION

Submitted by Government of Alberta

If passed, Budget 2025 will invest $180 million over three years toward building two compassionate intervention centres, paving the way for Alberta's upcoming legislation.

Alberta is an international leader in addiction treatment and recovery, driven by the Alberta Recovery Model. Alberta's government has prioritized investments into treatment capacity with 11 recovery communities and the removal of financial barriers for those in need of treatment and recovery. Alberta has also established the gold standard for access to opioid agonist therapy through the Virtual Opioid Dependency Program. With significant progress on the model, Alberta is taking the next step to move forward with promised legislation, known as compassionate intervention.

Alberta's government is continuing its work to develop compassionate intervention legislation. If passed, that legislation would allow family members, guardians, health care professionals, police or peace officers to request an addiction treatment order for Albertans who are a danger to themselves or others due to their addiction or substance use.

To provide proper health care for these patients with complex addiction needs, Alberta's government is building two compassionate intervention centres, each with capacity for 150 beds. The Northern Alberta Compassionate Intervention Centre will be built in Edmonton and the Southern Alberta Compassionate Intervention Centre will be built in Calgary. Construction is expected to begin in 2026 and be completed in 2029.

"For those suffering from addiction there are two paths – they can let their addiction destroy and take their life or they can enter recovery. Alberta's government is committed to providing a recovery-oriented system of care to ensure that those suffering from addiction have the opportunity to rebuild their lives. That's why we are introducing compassionate intervention as another tool in the Alberta Recovery Model. This upcoming legislation will help keep our communities safe while ensuring our most vulnerable can access much-needed recovery supports."

Danielle Smith, Premier

"We cannot – and will not – stand by and let addiction destroy our families and communities. These new facilities show a strong commitment to delivering on our promise for compassionate intervention, ensuring families are no longer forced to watch their loved ones suffer from the deadly disease of addiction."

Dan Williams, Minister of Mental Health and Addiction

Compassionate intervention is a made-in-Alberta strategy to address the addiction crisis, taking evidence-based models used in other jurisdictions and tailoring them to meet the unique needs of Albertans. Already, Alberta has seen significant progress with the creation of the Alberta Recovery Model. Alberta saw a 39 per cent decrease in the number of people losing their lives to opioid addiction over the first ten months of 2024 compared with the same period in 2023. In contrast, British Columbia saw only a 13 per cent decline between 2023 and 2024.

The Northern and Southern Alberta Compassionate Intervention Centres would help to continue decreasing the number of lives lost to addiction. The centres would serve as multi-functional facilities where patients will access a full spectrum of mental health and addiction supports to address complex needs. They would include spaces for intake assessments, medically supported detox, counselling, individual and group therapy, and more.

The goal is to provide stabilization, assessment and treatment so Albertans can successfully transition to community supports, such as a recovery community, to continue their recovery journey.

"We value our partnership with Alberta's government as we work to save lives and bring people into recovery. But with new, increasingly deadly drugs like methamphetamine and fentanyl, we can't keep doing the same things and expect different results while people are dying. As Chief of Enoch Cree Nation, I support compassionate intervention and welcome investments that prioritize Indigenous culture and new approaches that truly meet the needs of our people."

Cody Thomas, chief, Enoch Cree Nation

With an immediate need to provide compassionate intervention care, Alberta's government is also exploring options to have temporary compassionate intervention beds more quickly available within existing facilities.

Under the upcoming legislation, individuals would need to meet specific criteria to be eligible for compassionate intervention assessment and treatment. Decisions would be made by an independent commission consisting of lawyers, physicians, and members of the public, which may include Indigenous elders. Treatment would be tailored to each patient's needs and take place in a secure facility and in the community.

"Tsuut'ina Nation is grateful for our relationship with the Ministry of Mental Health and Addiction. These new compassionate intervention centres are an important part of addressing the opioid addiction crisis. We are confident that these safe spaces, guided by elders and experts, will provide valuable support for individuals and families in need."

Roy Whitney, chief, Tsuut'ina Nation

Safeguards would be built into the compassionate intervention legislation to ensure individual rights and freedoms are protected. Individuals would have access to legal support and the Health Advocate, and would retain the ability to appeal. Those who enter into compassionate intervention will undergo regular treatment reviews. Further details about compassionate intervention will be shared when legislation is introduced.

"Today, I feel hopeful. I'm grateful for Alberta's government because they have acknowledged the addiction crisis in Alberta and committed to proactive programs aimed at saving our loved ones. We must intervene to help people like my son reclaim their lives."

Amy Schiffner, mother of an adult suffering from addiction

"This commitment to compassionate intervention is ensuring we bring as many people out of addiction as possible. It's clear Alberta's government is taking recovery seriously with significant investment into the delivery of compassionate intervention care."

Bruce Holstead, executive director, Fresh Start Recovery Centre

"There is nothing more heart wrenching than families watching their loved one struggle with the illness of addiction. PEP Society welcomes this investment and action to establish compassionate intervention, and we look forward to having this resource to rebuild health and wellness in families across Alberta."

Lerena Greig, executive director, Parents Empowering Parents (PEP) Society

"We need to ask ourselves if it is better to leave someone to harm themselves with ongoing addiction or if we should compassionately intervene. The answer is obviously to intervene and do what we can to save someone's life."

Earl Thiessen, executive director, Oxford House

Advisory committees are being established to help guide and provide input on the implementation of compassionate intervention within the health system. Members will include representatives from Indigenous communities and families affected by addiction. Alberta's government will also continue to consult with police and health professionals to establish a robust compassionate intervention system.

Alberta's government is making record investments and removing barriers to recovery-oriented supports for all Albertans. In addition to adding more than 10,000 new, publicly funded addiction treatment spaces, the province expanded access to the Virtual Opioid Dependency Program, which provides same-day access to life-saving treatment medication. Alberta's government is also investing in 11 recovery communities, three of which are operational.

BE PREPARED. KNOW YOUR RISKS AT EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS DAY 2025

Submitted by Stony Plain

Emergencies can happen anytime, anywhere. Are you ready? This Emergency Preparedness Week (May 4 to 10), take the time to learn how you and your family can stay safe when the unexpected happens. Join Tri-Municipal Region emergency services on Saturday, May 10 from 10 AM to 3 PM outside of Stony Plain

Town Hall (4905 51 Avenue) for Emergency Preparedness Day, a free, family-friendly event featuring hands-on activities, safety education, and opportunities to connect with local first responders.

"Whether it's wildfire, flood, or extreme weather, our communities are not immune to emergencies," says Stony Plain Mayor William Choy. "We're proud to bring together regional partners and emergency crews to empower residents with practical tools and knowledge. Preparedness starts with awareness, and together, we can build safer and more resilient communities."

"Emergency preparedness is essential for protecting lives, property, and communities during unexpected events," said Spruce Grove Mayor Jeff Acker. "By planning ahead, we can significantly reduce the impact of emergencies, minimize injuries and property damage, and save lives. Being prepared also fosters resilience and allows our communities to recover faster after a disaster or emergency event."

"Parkland County has seen residents forced to evacuate their homes due to the devastating effects of wildfires in recent years," said Parkland County Mayor Allan Gamble. "By collaborating with our Tri-Regional partners and first responders on this event, we can ensure that everyone can take comfort in being prepared rather than scared should an emergency event occur and have some family fun at the same time."

Attendees can expect a variety of engaging activities for all ages, including:

Interactive booths with emergency preparedness information

Equipment displays from emergency agencies across the Tri-Region

Photo opportunities with first responders and emergency vehicles

Appearances by Sparky the Fire Dog

A BBQ and concession area
"Preparedness isn't just about having a kit or a plan, it's about knowing your risks and having confidence in your ability to respond," says Stony Plain Fire Chief Jason Nesbitt. "This event gives residents a chance to meet the people who respond to emergencies in our region and learn first-hand what steps they can take to protect themselves and their families."
