HELP FEED FAMILIES IN ONOWAY AND LAC STE ANNE EAST AREA!

Submitted by Lac Ste. Anne East Food Bank

Annual Door-to-Door Food Drive Returns This September

It's time once again to help replenish the shelves at Lac Ste. Anne East Food Bank—and we believe that families helping families is one of the most powerful ways to make a difference.

On Saturday, September 27th, volunteers from JustServe and The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Onoway will be going door-to-door to collect non-perishable food donations in support of the Lac Ste Anne East Food Bank.

JustServe is a free website and app where community organizations post their volunteer needs, and individuals can search for opportunities to serve. By connecting people with meaningful ways to help, JustServe strengthens communities and enhances quality of life for everyone.

This marks the 6th year that the annual food drive has taken place in this area, with hundreds of generous donors and volunteers coming together to serve.

During the week leading up to the food drive, local volunteers will deliver donation bags to homes throughout Onoway. Residents are invited to fill the bags with non-perishable food and leave them on their doorsteps before 10:00 a.m. on Saturday, September 27th. Volunteers will then collect the donations and deliver them to the food bank for sorting and distribution to local families in need.

If you live in Darwell area, there is a collection site from Sept 1-26, 2025 at individuals, rural and remote regions and newcomers and refugees.

"Everyone deserves to feel safe in their own home and community. By giving families the support and skills they need, we can prevent violence before it starts and help build healthy relationships. I am proud to support initiatives and projects that bring hope, healing and lasting change. Together, we can break the cycle and create a future free from family violence in Alberta."

Searle Turton, Minister of Children and Family Services

The funding is being provided through two grant programs launched in January – $2 million through the Prevention Grant Program and $2 million through the invitational Indigenous-led Approaches to Family Violence Prevention Program.

This investment, supported by the National Action Plan to End Gender-Based Violence, builds on the recent release of Building on our Strengths, Alberta's 10-Year Strategy to End Gender-Based Violence, which outlines how the province will work to prevent gender-based violence, support those impacted and ensure those committing these crimes are held to account.

"Preventing family violence begins with building strong support and trusted connections. These grants move Alberta's 10-Year Strategy forward by helping people build trust, repair relationships and strengthen the bonds that keep communities strong. Every Albertan deserves a safe place, free from fear."

Tanya Fir, Minister of Arts, Culture and Status of Women

en

"Through the National Action Plan to End Gender-Based Violence, the federal government is proud to support Alberta's work to prevent family violence before it starts. By investing in community-led and Indigenous-led programmes, we are helping Albertans build healthy relationships, strengthen families, and break the cycle of violence. Together with our partners, we are working towards a future where every person, in Alberta and across Canada, can live free from violence, with dignity, safety, and hope."

Rechie Valdez, Minister of Women and Gender Equality and Secretary of State (Small Business and Tourism)

If you or someone you know is experiencing family violence, you are not alone.

You can call or text the Family Violence Info Line 24/7 at 310-1818, go online to alberta.ca/safetychat or visit your local women's shelter for support. A full list of resources is available at alberta.ca/familyviolence.

Alberta's 10-year Strategy to End Gender-Based Violence builds on our province's strengths – across government and with community partners – to achieve our vision of a province where every Albertan lives in safety, free from gender-based violence.

COUNCIL REQUESTS FEDERAL DROUGHT RELIEF FOR LOCAL PRODUCERS

LSAC.ca/news

County Council has approved a letter to the Honourable Heath MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture and Agri-Food, requesting that Lac Ste. Anne County should be included in the 2025 Federal Livestock Tax Deferral Program.

This request follows prolonged drought conditions that have severely impacted forage, pasture, crop yields, and water supplies in areas of the County. Many producers are facing reduced feed availability, higher costs, and herd reduction decisions. Inclusion in the federal program would allow eligible livestock producers to defer a portion of income from herd sales to the following tax year, to ease cash flow pressures and support recovery efforts.

AGGREGATE RESOURCE REDISTRICTING BYLAW MOVES TO NEXT STAGE

LSAC.ca/news

Council has given second reading to Bylaw 22-2017-04-2025, which proposes changing the land use designation for three parcels — NW 33-53-03 W5M, NE 33-53-03 W5M, and SW 34-53-03 W5M from Agricultural '1' (AG1) District to Aggregate Resource Extraction & Processing (AR) District.

If approved, this change would allow the lands to be used for aggregate extraction and related processing activities. Before the bylaw can proceed to third and final reading, Council has directed Administration to obtain additional studies to ensure potential impacts, such as environmental considerations, traffic, noise, and dust, are properly assessed.

This staged approach allows County Council to review detailed information before making a final decision on whether to approve the redistricting.

HOW TO IMPROVE INDOOR AIR QUALITY IN WINTER

Plants can improve indoor air quality by helping to remove harmful irritants from the air.

Homes tend to be stuffier in autumn and winter. As temperatures outside dip, windows are closed and air quality inside homes can suffer.

Poor indoor air quality can not only be uncomfortable, causing residents to experience headaches, dry eyes and nasal congestion, but also can be unhealthy. According to the American Lung Association, poor indoor air quality can cause or contribute to the development of infections, lung cancer and chronic lung diseases, such as asthma.

Though it's not feasible or healthy to open windows when temperatures outside dip to near or below freezing, there are steps everyone can take to improve the indoor air quality in their homes.

Add to your décor with plants. Plants provide both aesthetic and practical appeal to a home's interior. Houseplants can clean and purify the air in a home, helping to remove formaldehyde, benzene and other toxins that can make indoor air unhealthy to breathe. Benzene is an irritant that can cause dizziness, headache, nausea, and blurred vision, among other side effects. Formaldehyde, which is often found in homes thanks to its widespread use in a range of products, can cause watery eyes, nausea and wheezing.

How To Improve Indoor Air Quality In Winter

· Watch what you are lighting up. Many homeowners know that smoking indoors drastically reduces indoor air quality, putting even nonsmokers at heightened risk of developing various respiratory ailments. Homeowners concerned about the indoor air quality in their homes should ban smoking inside, no matter how low temperatures dip outside. In addition, homeowners with wood-burning stoves and fireplaces should be especially diligent maintaining these features, as they can release harmful soot and smoke if they are not taken care of. Some people may also be allergic to incense and scented candles, so keep a watchful eye on residents and guests whenever you light candles or sticks of incense. If any symptoms of allergies appear, avoid lighting any more candles or incense, waiting until you can open the windows if you want to light any again.

· Purchase an air purifier. Air purifiers are beneficial year-round, helping to remove allergens and particles from a home. High-efficiency particulate air filters, known as HEPA filters, are extremely effective at removing airborne particulates from the air inside your home.

· Pay attention to pets. Like their owners, pets tend to spend more time indoors during the winter. That means more fur and pet dander, the skin flakes in an animal's fur or hair that can trigger allergic reactions, is likely in your home during the winter than in the summer. To combat this, bathe your pets regularly in the winter, making sure to wash the animal's bedding in hot water on a weekly basis as well.

· Open the windows when possible. Winter does not typically provide many opportunities to open the windows, but you might get a few chances to let some fresh air in through the windows during winter. Make the most of these opportunities, and when possible crack the windows when you're cleaning so dust and other particles that kick up have a path outside of your home.

Clean interior air should be a year-round priority, but homeowners may have to go the extra mile to keep their homes' interior air clean when winter arrives.

STANDING TOGETHER TO PROTECT CHILDREN AND YOUTH

Submitted by Government of Alberta

Alberta's government is increasing funding for child advocacy centres to better support children and youth experiencing abuse.

To help address rising case-loads, Alberta's government is increasing funding for child and youth advocacy centres by 10 per cent. This represents an increase to $3.7 million in 2025, ensuring these centres can continue their vital work supporting children and youth.

"Alberta has been a leader in creating safe places for children and youth who have experienced abuse. Centres like Zebra Centre and Luna Centre were among the first of their kind in Canada, and they continue to give hope and healing to thousands of children, youth and their families. This new funding will help them, and six other centres across Alberta, keep providing the critical support to protect children and youth."

Searle Turton, Minister of Children and Family Services

Child advocacy centres bring together law enforcement agencies and community partners in a child-friendly environment to provide services such as mental health, medical and legal supports to children and youth who experience physical, emotional or sexual abuse and/or neglect.

With eight provincially funded centres located in communities including Fort McMurray, Grande Prairie, Edmonton, Lloydminster, Red Deer, Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, this funding will help support more children and youth across the province on their healing journey.

"As our community's response to child abuse, the Zebra Centre supports more than 4,000 children and youth every year. Our multi-disciplinary team works together within the Zebra Centre to deliver essential services and supports, and the Ministry of Children and Family Services is a core partner in this important work."

Emmy Stuebing, chief executive officer, Zebra Child and Youth Advocacy Centre

This funding represents another step in helping to ensure Alberta is the safest place to live, work and raise a family. It builds on the recent release of Building on our Strengths, Alberta's 10-Year Strategy to End Gender-Based Violence, which outlines how the province will work to prevent gender-based violence, support those affected, and ensure those committing these crimes are held to account.

"Dogs with Wings provides trained facility dogs that support children and youth during difficult interviews and court proceedings, as well as in their recovery from traumatic experiences. We are committed to meeting the growing demand from our valued child and youth advocacy centre partners for more dogs. Together, we do important work."

Amanda Dubé, chief executive officer, Dogs with Wings

Everyone has a shared responsibility to recognize the signs of abuse and neglect, and to report any concerns for a child's well-being. Speaking up to protect children is a courageous act that can have life-changing effects on young people, showing them that they are not alone.

If you see something that worries you, don't wait. Report concerns by calling the 24-7 Child Intervention Line at 1-800-638-0715.

SUDOKU

of the week

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box.

ANSWER:
Last Weeks

You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
