Change your train of thought with the following information:

•Speed Misperception: Because of their size, trains appear to be much farther away and travelling much slower than their actual speed. Don't be fooled! If stuck on the tracks, exit your vehicle immediately and call the emergency number on the nearby blue sign.

•Trains Can't Stop Quickly: The average train needs at least two kilometres to stop. Trains can stop, but they can't stop quickly!

•Trespassing: Taking a shortcut across the tracks or being on railway property is illegal. Trespassers can be seriously injured or killed.

•Weight Ratio: An average freight train weighs over 5,500 tonnes, compared to a car, which weighs about 1.5 tonnes. A train hitting a car is like a car hitting a pop can.

JOHN McNAB

for Councillor of Division 6 in Parkland County

Q: What skills do you bring to the table?

I have 8 years of experience on council in Parkland County. I believe that I am the right person for this role because I am naturally very analytical and logical. When making decisions in Council Chambers, you have to understand that for every action, there's a reaction – it's like three-dimensional chess. My goal is always to balance individual concerns with the potential impacts on others.

Q: How will you make sure that rural voices are heard?

Parkland County is home to over 32,000 residents, and people live here in many different ways. Some make their homes in denser subdivisions or near lakes, while others live in rural areas where farms, acreages and wide-open spaces define daily life. With that diversity comes different...

TRANSFORMING EMPLOYMENT SERVICES IN ALBERTA

Submitted by Government of Alberta

WorkFirst Alberta will help job seekers find meaningful work and support employers in building a skilled workforce.

A new suite of employment services is launching to connect Albertans to jobs and employers to skilled job seekers. Employment services are more than a link to the job market – they are a lifeline for people navigating unemployment, career changes or new training needs. WorkFirst Alberta will make it easier for Albertans to access workshops, reskilling opportunities and career supports, while giving employers the tools they need to find and retain talent.

Through Budget 2025, Alberta's government is making record investments in career and employment services, committing $185 million to make it easier for Albertans to find a job, earn a paycheque and build a better future for themselves and their families.

"WorkFirst is about transforming lives. It will help job seekers become employees, support employers in finding the right talent and empower the dedicated service providers who make these connections possible. We are united in our goal to help Albertans connect to secure jobs where they can build a strong and prosperous future."

Jason Nixon, Minister of Assisted Living and Social Services

Through WorkFirst Alberta, employers will be able to connect with local supports and access an employer toolkit and labour market information. In 2026, the program will expand further with the launch of a jobseeker-employer matching service and a concierge service tailored to employers.

"The reason people love Alberta is because we believe in opportunity. WorkFirst will open doors for more Albertans to find a good job that meets their needs. Not only does this create the means for someone to live, but it also builds a sense of pride, knowing they are a part of Alberta's economic success."

Joseph Schow, Minister of Jobs, Economy, Trade and Immigration

A key aspect of WorkFirst Alberta is ensuring Albertans facing barriers to employment receive the customized supports they need. It expands supports for persons with disabilities, women, youth and other Albertans facing barriers through flexible, person-centred services focussed on long-term success. These services include career planning, assistive technology and supported job placements. In addition, WorkFirst Alberta will improve access to wraparound supports including childcare, transportation and mental health supports.

"These programs deliver results that matter. We've seen participants gain confidence, overcome significant challenges and find long-term employment. The government's investment enables partners like Ballad to provide effective, targeted services that support Alberta's economy and offer real value to the communities we serve."

John Corie, managing partner, Ballad Group

"Prospect welcomes the province's launch of WorkFirst Alberta. This new model will create innovative pathways for Albertans facing barriers and unlock critical labour pools to meet employer needs. WorkFirst ensures that all Albertans – regardless of background or circumstance – have the support they need to build brighter futures and strengthen Alberta's workforce and economy."

Kevin McNichol, CEO, Prospect Human Services

To support the launch, the province is rolling out a marketing campaign featuring real stories from Albertans who have benefitted from government-funded employment services – individuals who turned to these services for help and were able to find stable jobs and rebuild their lives. These stories will be showcased on the WorkFirst Alberta webpage.

DOES WHAT YOU DO MATTER?

Submitted by MLA Shane Getson

If you have never asked yourself this question you are a narcissist in the first degree, which if you are reading this, in little local paper, from a local MLA is highly improbable. So, does what you do matter? Does what you say matter?

Over the summer as I've been out in the constituency, around the province, and out of the country meeting with folks on "official business" and on my own vacation, I found myself reflecting on these questions. Self-reflection, looking to improve my effectiveness as an MLA, to be a better father and a better husband. With the assassination of Charlie Kirk last week, I went much deeper, looking harder in the mirror of self-evaluation.

I've been serving as an MLA now for 6 years, I have been lucky to represent the hard-working salt of the earth people in our area and representing our province abroad as the Parliamentary Secretary for Economic Corridor Development. I've managed to plant a seed when it comes to Economic Corridors which has grown to the level of national conversation. Although I'm not the one who's signature is on the page, I'm just as happy to see our Premier sign an MOU with all the western provinces and the Territories. Premiers across the west and north signed up for a 5-year term on the Economic corridor model to be used, to collaborate on development with a regional focus.

On the international front, and with the organizations in my role I'm part of, I've been elected into executive positions with the Pacific Northwest Economic Region, being the Canadian President, and the VP for the overall organization. Within that organization we literally have committees and panels working on the models for removing logistic, and trade barriers within the region. This gives weight to our voice not just in our province, but across the states, and federally on both sides of the 49th parallel.

I've been asked to speak again this year at the Ports to Plains AGM that's being held in Texas to bring updates, and to bring awareness as to what's going on in the province, and how "Fortress North America" could work... Texas to Alaska through Alberta. I've managed to stand up an Alberta / India advisory Committee so that we can advance the economic corridor to the largest growing global economy.

The items noted above are not to be boastful, they are intended to inform, because no matter what seems to happen on the front of moving this model forward, no one seems to hear about it in the mainstream media. It's not interesting...no one really follows it in the social media posts, they are more interested in slinging mud or pointing those digital fingers at each other over which bathroom they want to use. I refuse to give that much oxygen going forward, we must be better.

On the personal front, I've missed so much time with my kids that I will never get back, trying to advance the model forward to help build resilience in our area, our province and country. I have missed spending time with family and friends, because I was leaning in to make sure the organization, I was part of could gel as a team. Some of whom I'll never see again, some who are struggling with health issues, that I may not see for much longer.

So, is it worth it? Have I been effective? Does my voice really matter? Have I influenced others? Can I do more with the current position I'm in? Could any of us hold a candle to what a man of 31 years old, who openly challenged people to "talk it out" did?

When I compare myself to Charlie Kirk, I just fall short. He made such a huge impact on so many in such a short time. I know that to be true as well for many people over the years that have done more in their time than I have, and knowing that because of them, we are all better off. All I can do is to take solace in knowing we matter when we do our best to not just serve ourselves, but to serve others. Knowing full well, we may never personally witness the positive impact we have, but knowing that others can take up the cause, can finish the work, making it bigger and bolder than we could have done on our own.

What you do does matter, what you say does matter, for better or for worse as we've seen come to pass so profoundly over the last week.

I'm going to do the best I can with the time I have left as the MLA for Lac Ste. Anne - Parkland, knowing the work I put in may not be realized fully for years to come. I will continue to meet with folks, to hear firsthand what matters to them, to bounce ideas back and forth, to trouble shoot where I can. I'll be there at the events when I'm given an invitation. I will however, put a few guard rails in place that were not as rigid as before, like ensuring I take time to spend with my family, and some very dear friends. I heard that message loud and clear this summer. I can't change the past, but knowing the importance of the remaining time I have left, well, not many of us get a second chance.

This week I'm up in Alaska at the Energy Council, Next week will be in Lacombe for a few days then in Calgary to meet with the Nordic Ambassadors (I'm wanting to set up an advisory council for that region as well) as the Premiers Parliamentary Secretary.

A week after that I'm down at the Ports to Plains conference in Texas, week following that in Portland to lead a panel, chair some committees, and provide strategic guidance at the PNWER Rail / Logistics conference. A few weeks after that I'm off to Washington DC as part of the PNWER executive delegation to meet with Congressmen and Senators regarding the relevance, and the potentials for the Pacific Northwest Economic Region, and to bring to attention the items of importance to the member states and provinces.

I'm hoping that what I do matters, I hope that what I say means something to others, and I am hopeful that the small part I play will be meaningful to the overall good to our province, and the region we are part of. I need to make sure the work carries on with others.

I hope that you know what you do is just as important, that it takes all of us doing what we can, not losing hope, or letting common sense die. We have been turning the other way, turning the other cheek for too long on so many levels. It does not mean we need to resort to the same caustic behaviors as those that would tear down, rather than build up. It just means we need to stop giving that negative energy oxygen, move on, rise up, step up, do better. Stay Strong, and may you always be Free.

of the week

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box.

ANSWER: Last Weeks

You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
